Minister's Column

I'm now one month in to my sabbatical, but it feels like it's just starting. I took a week of vacation in the first month, and I also spent a week going to my minister's study group, which is an annual occurrence, so there have only been two other weeks to fall into the new pattern for the next five months, and this half-week of Thanksgiving as I write this. Those weeks are punctuated by my daughter's and husband's schedule, and also by the rhythm of teaching class, since I'm teaching at JCC this semester (out in Adrian) and next (back in Jackson). In between these things, I have had time for some reading and reflection and some new learning, but I'm off to a slow start. This was intentionally planned, however, to have some time to unwind before diving into projects!

It's going to be quite a different holiday season for me this year, and I'm looking forward to attending a couple of other churches and learning how they do things during December. One of the places in my ministry where I feel the most out of ideas is in dealing with the holidays—the holidays don't drastically change from year to year, so it's hard to keep what I have to say about them fresh and interesting. I've already gotten some good ideas from colleagues this month, but I know I'll get even more from seeing how other ministers handle things.

Meanwhile, I do miss the holiday season back at East Liberty! I know you're hanging the greens and starting to get ready for a children's pageant, and the plans for things like Santa's Workshop, the annual AUUW holiday luncheon, and a bake sale or cookie exchange are underway. It's hard to stay removed from all of that, because it's become an important part of my yearly holiday ritual to help our church celebrate the holidays! Don't be surprised if you see me poke my head in the door once or twice this month.

Wishing you a wonderful holiday season,

Cindy

~ 20 weeks ~

With Rev. Cindy's permission; here is the count down till she returns from her Sabbatical and back to the pulpit. P.S. she is counting down also.

Religious Education Report

We are looking forward to December's activities: Santa's workshop on December 12 during social hour, and the pageant on December 19, during the service.

We plan on having a pageant rehearsal for preschool through 5th graders on Saturday Dec. 4, and for youth on Saturday December 11, both days 11am – 1:30pm. We will feed them lunch both days! We are also looking for some folks who like to sew to make a few simple costume props. See Sharon if you can help with this.

We are wrapping up our duffel bag/suitcase drive, with good response so far. On December 24 the nursery will be available as a "crying room only," meaning one adult volunteer (or me), and a parent/adult family member must stay with their child if they need/want to bring them down.

The youth will be serving lunch at the Interfaith Shelter on Sunday December 26 during the service. We will have permission slips and would welcome a few adults to come along too—we need a crew of at least 8, so Michelle Vanover and I are taking RSVPs for this meaningful service activity.

We are also scheduling teachers for what I call "Winter/Spring semester," January through June. I would like to meet with preschool teachers for a few minutes on December 5 and youth teachers on December 12 during social hour to do this scheduling; K-5th grade teachers met already so if I missed you, please be in touch.

Speaking of K-5, we will be running an experimental approach to accommodating the range of ages and interests in that class starting in January. Because some Sundays we have mostly K-2s and some mostly 3rd-5th graders, and some a good mixture of both, we will have start using two curricula, both "In Our Hands: a Peace and Justice Curriculum," but one geared toward the younger age set and one for the older. Since we have two teachers each Sunday, one will do the primary preparation for the K-2 curriculum, and one for the 3-5 curriculum (reading through both for familiarity). Then they will decide together based on who shows up for class whether to do one or the other, or split the kids into two tables and offer both! We'll give this a try and see if it meets the kids needs a little better.

Congregation members and friends—have I told you lately how much your support of the RE program means to me? We couldn't offer such a fine program without you! Hopefully you are enriched by the young 'uns in return, as I am.

Sincerely
yUUrs,

Sharon

Religious Education Coordinator

Notes from the Board

The Board met without a quorum on Wednesday, Nov 3. We did take action on several items, getting the necessary votes by telephone! One important issue is that we need more fundraisers—as in, ideas for events, and people to organize them. This is partly due to higher than expected costs of recent repair work on the steeple (although we also got more donations than expected so the news isn't all bad.) We approved a check to pay for the bucket truck, and also another check for the estimate on the piano repair. Our church supported the PFLAG Day of Remembrance that was held in November. It was a evening of remembering our LGBT friends who have experienced violence. Our next meeting is Wednesday, December 1, at 6:30 p.m. in the church social hall.

UUCEL On-Line Easy On-Line Fundraisers

UUCEL has three easy ways you can earn money for the church while going about your usual on-line activities. The first is through Amazon.com. If you're shopping at www.Amazon.com, first go to our church webpage at www.libertyuu.org/shop.html and click on the link to Amazon. Once you do that, the church will earn a percentage (usually 4%) of the amount you spend at Amazon. The second method is to use GoodSearch as your search engine. It works like other search engines, such as Google. Whenever you're searching the web, go to www.GoodSearch.com, enter "Universalist Unitarian Church of East Liberty" as your agency you're fundraising for, and then every time you search the web we make a penny. Third, use GoodShop before shopping. Go to www.GoodShop.com and enter Universalist Unitarian Church of East Liberty as your agency, and then click from there to any number of on-line business, from e-Bay to Orbitz to iTunes, and when you make your purchase at the store, UUCEL will earn a portion of your sales.

Profile of New Members:

Harry and Dee Reed

If you ask Harry and Dee Reed about the church, they say they are very happy being here. However, it was a journey, as it has been for many of us. Harry's parents were English immigrants so, when he was a little boy, they took him to the Church of England and then to a spiritualist church. Dee grew up unchurched but later she and Harry attended the Congregational church where they liked the warm welcome. Still, Dee says she "never learned the language" of the church. Now at our UU church, she says, "I can understand what it's all about."

Harry was the editor of the Jackson Citizen Patriot from 1976-85 but chose an early retirement from this high-stress position in the wake of a heart attack. He has a degree in political science from U of M but went right into journalism where he stayed, moving up from reporting to supervision.

Harry and Dee met at U of M where Dee graduated from as well. They have been married 58 years. Dee is a retired psychologist who practiced in Jackson and Grand Rapids. While Harry is happy not to be in a supervisory role any more, Dee is ready to jump into church activities and get involved. She'll be working on the book sale early next year.

On a summer day you can find the Reeds enjoying their non-motor boats at their home on Crispell Lake. They have three sons – all of whom are in music – grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Their son Mike and his family live close by. Harry is a voracious reader and Dee is passionate about watercolor painting which she has done all her life. You can see her work on display in the social hall. Please welcome the Reeds.
