Minister's Column

Do you remember when we became a Welcoming Congregation? I don't – it was right before I came to this church. Well, now the UUA has a Welcoming Congregation renewal program. A lot of things have changed in our culture since we became a Welcoming Congregation, a big piece of which is that we have a much larger awareness of transgender identity. The renewal program is less prescribed than the initial Welcoming Congregation program, but it calls on us to do work again in educating ourselves, assessing our programs and publicity, and doing advocacy work, and then taking a confirmation vote. We've been engaging in some of this work, and I think may be ready to vote on this by spring. And so with this in mind, I'm particularly excited that this month we're once again welcoming the Rev. Julie Nemecek to our pulpit. The Rev. Nemecek has been an important advocate for transgender awareness and civil rights in our community, and November 20 marks the Transgender Day of Remembrance, a time to remember those who have died as a result of transphobia.

Once we've gone through the Welcoming Congregation renewal process, or maybe when we've committed to it, we're eligible to use the UUA's new Welcoming Congregation logo on our website. The new Welcoming Congregation logo is designed to integrate with the UUA's new logo and branding materials, which is handy because the UUA is launching a new template for UU congregational webpages. Not too long ago we did an overhaul of our webpage and converted it to using Wordpress. Wordpress has a lot of lovely templates and applications we can use, and has the advantage of being a system where our leaders can be given individual IDs to access and adapt portions of our web. This has made it easier for our newsletter editor, for example, to get things onto our webpage in a timely fashion without going through getting it posted by a second volunteer. The UUA's new template is a Wordpress template, so changing over our look and our theme to their template will be fairly easy, although we'll need to probably add content and pictures. But there's good reason to make the switch, since this template is specifically designed for UU churches, and so incorporates all the elements that we'll need. So keep an eye on our webpage this month, because you'll be seeing this change soon. If you'd like to see the UUA's demo site for the new template, it's available at <http://demo.uuatheme.org/>.

This Month in Religious Education

Religious Education is off to a good start this year. The K-5th class is learning about the 7th principle, care for our earth and all living beings. In October we learned about healing our world. The kids had a lot of energy and enthusiasm for recycling and picking up litter. The 6th-12th class talked about "Letting Go Through Music". We've got some good musicians coming up through our congregation. This group will spend time this year thinking about their values and beliefs. By summer they will each have developed an individual "This I Believe" statement. It promises to be a year of growth!

We are in need of nursery volunteers. If you can help out once a quarter (or once a month) please sign up in the social hall or talk to Jackie.

Notes from the Board

The Board met at In Good Company restaurant this month, to support the fundraiser for Personal Care Ministries. Everyone was present. We spent some time reviewing the budget...pledges are coming in a little slower than expected for this point in the year. We are confident that this is a temporary situation. We don't have a final tally for the Grandma's attic sale and Harvest Bazaar, but it seems the total take was reasonably good considering the weather was so bad. Full minutes of this and all board meetings are available in the social hall. Our Board meets the first Wednesday of every month, 6:30 p.m. at the church social hall. We welcome all visitors and input.

This year I've joined the Michigan UU Social Justice Network board. As I look at the work MUUSJN is doing, and as I look at the template for the new Wordpress site, it makes me think about what our congregation is doing for justice. We have monthly participation in the Jackson Personal Care Ministry (the personal care items pantry), and we vote to take special collections for agencies, but we have no current social justice committee so there's more we could do but don't do due to lack of leadership in this area. I preach on issues, but seldom do we see initiatives that take the issues from the theoretical to the concrete. I know you're involved in justice issues individually, but there's more we can do collectively, if we work on it. If you're interested in taking leadership in this area, speak with me about your passions, your interests, the need you see in the world. Together we can make things happen.

Namaste,

Rev. Cindy

2015 Common Read Book: Just Mercy

For the last several years, the Unitarian Universalist Association has announced "Common Read" books. This year's book is an important one for us here in Jackson, so we'll try to hold discussion groups later in the year. Pick up a book from your favorite bookseller and start reading now. Just Mercy: A Story of Justice and Redemption by Bryan Stevenson is this year's selection. Stevenson has dedicated his legal career to defending those who are trapped by an often capricious, political, and willfully unjust criminal justice system - poor people, people of color, children, and others over whom the system has run roughshod. It speaks to justice, mercy, and compassion, themes of concern to us as Unitarian Universalists and as human beings. It follows on recent Common Reads, such as The New Jim Crow and Reclaiming Prophetic Witness, and responds to recent statements passed by the delegates to the UUA General Assembly.

Soul Matters Spiritual Exercises for This Month's "Ancestry" Theme:

Option A: Bring it Back — Being a people of ancestry means passing on traditions. And it doesn't take much to notice that so many family traditions are in danger of extinction. The recipe that was required at every Thanksgiving but now no one bothers with. The outdated and supposedly tedious task of writing a handwritten letter. Passing on a family heirloom. Bedtime stories. Family game night. Marking the height of your kids on the kitchen doorway wall. Even sitting down at the dinner table to eat together. Slowly disappearing. Maybe even already gone. This exercise simply asks you to bring one of them back. Here's your task, put simply: Dust off an old, forgotten family tradition and protect it from extinction.

Option B: Pass The Wisdom On — Traditions are important to pass on, but so is wisdom. And while you may not feel you possess ancestor-like wisdom, you do have useful lessons to share! You have learned a lot about life that will be useful to those who come after. And believe me, they are more open to it than you imagine. So don't be shy. Share your wisdom! It's as simple as that. Your assignment: Find someone younger than yourself who you think has open ears and tell them something you've learned that you think might be useful to them.

Option C: The Ancestors Are Watching — Sometimes it's on our wall. Sometimes on the dresser or our desk. Many of them have been placed in a locket we wear around our neck. We are of course talking about pictures of ancestors, and placing them in prominent places so as not to forget that they are watching us. It's a habit that has fallen out of style. This month bring it back. And in doing so, hear their voice, wisdom, comfort and call anew. Your instructions:

1. Find or print out a picture of a relative that was important to you or played a major role in your family's story. You might also pick a picture of your chosen ancestor (one that you've adopted by choice rather than given by blood) or a spiritual ancestor (a political or religious hero whose life inspires your

- own). The goal is to pick someone who you want to be looking down on you.
2. Place that picture in a prominent place for the entire month and take a brief moment to look at it at the beginning of each day.
3. Pay attention to how pulling their face, their story and "their stare" into your awareness alters your days.
4. Share your experience with someone at church.

Option D: When the Story Changed — Being a people of ancestry sometimes means putting an end to what's been passed on. We are all working in one way or another to break family cycles of dysfunction. We also know that we are not the first to struggle with changing our ancestral storyline. This exercise invites you to honor this work that has gone before. You can approach this from multiple angles:

- ~ Identify a family member who you know has been central to the cycles of your family changing. Find a way to thank them and talk to them about what it was like for them.
- ~ If you are a writer, make the time this month to journal or write a poem in honor of a family member who helped pass on a new storyline to you.
- ~ Sit down with your child and tell them the story of the relative that gifted your family with "new ancestry."

Our Closing Song

Go now and live your religion.
Its truth reflect in all you do.
Go, may love's presence ever guide you.
Live the good life the whole day through.

Showing Up for Racial Justice!

Chris Crass, one of the founders of the national group Showing Up for Racial Justice (SURJ), will be in Michigan this month for a session with faith leaders titled "What is the call upon Michigan faith leaders for racial justice in this time?" The event is Friday, November 13th from 10:30 am to 1:30pm, and is held at the First Congregational Church of Battle Creek, 145 Capital Ave. NE, Battle Creek, MI. Rev. Cindy will be attending and would love to have some UUCEL members join her. No registration is necessary, but please tell Rev. Cindy if you're thinking of attending. See page 6 for a flyer with more information. Submitted by: Rev. Cindy

Death and Desserts

Ten people enjoyed our Death Potluck in September, so we're back this month for desserts! Bring a dessert, and we'll make coffee and together we'll discuss death – how do we feel about facing our own mortality? What do we want to have happen to our body after we die? Is there an afterlife? Join us for discussion on Wednesday, November 18th, at 7:00 pm.

Pub Theology

Local Lutherans and Presbyterians have been meeting for a group called "Pub Theology," and they're interested in expanding to become an interfaith group, and would love to have some interested UUs come and discuss theology as part of the group. Their last session featured Rev. Cindy as their guest and they peppered her with questions about Unitarian and Universalist theology, and a good time was had by all. The group is about discussion, not conversion, and is friendly and interested in different opinions. Join them this month on the first or third Tuesday (Nov. 3 or 17) at 7:00 pm at the Grand River Marketplace. Discussion questions and guest speakers are posted in advance on their Facebook page — <https://www.facebook.com/JacksonPubTheology>.

Gospel Sing Fundraiser, an invitation to Personal Care Support Churches

November 8, @ First Congregational Church, N. Jackson Street. This is to invite the churches who support the Personal Care Ministry to join us on Sunday afternoon, November 8, 2015, in a Gospel Sing Festival to be held at the First Congregational Church.

Each participation choir/praise team/small group/soloist will have a slot on the program for one, two, or three selections along with congregational hymn singing.

Please pass this invitation on to those who may be interested in performing in this event. Last November, we had a great time and raised a good amount for the ministry. Our goal is to increase the choir participants.

For information or to register to participate, contact Christine Canning-Peterson at Christine.Canning@uni.edu or call her at 517-416-2281. Or you can contact Nena Obits for more information. Submitted by: Nena Obits

Personal Care Ministry

The Jackson Personal Care Ministry provides personal and household products to those in need in Jackson County. An average of 150 guests are served weekly. Our team works at the distribution on the third Thursday of each month, Nov. 19 4:30 - 6:30 pm. Financial support and donations of new and gently used products are greatly appreciated. For more information, contact Nena Obits. See Supplement Page for more information.

November Theme: Ancestry & Faith

Nov 1 - "All My Relations"

– Rev. Dr. Cynthia L. Landrum

"The very air surrounding us and moving the flame is the air our Ancestors were breathing. There is no other." says Mi-Shell Jessen. At this time of year of All Saints' Day and All Souls's Day, how do we embrace, struggle with, and engage our ancestors?

Nov 8 - "Faith and Stardust"

– Rev. Dr. Cynthia L. Landrum

Carl Sagan used to say, "We are all star stuff!" How do the latest scientific discoveries, such as water on Mars, change how we understand our place in the universe?

Nov 15 - "To Be Announced"

– Rev. Julie Nemecek, Guest Preacher

Nov 22 - "Guest at Your Table: Refugees"

– Rev. Cynthia L. Landrum

One of the UU Service Committee's major focuses is serving the people who are most overlooked or discriminated against in the midst of humanitarian crises such as forced migration, large-scale conflicts, genocide, and natural disasters. This year the Guest at Your Table program is highlighting the empowerment of refugees. As UUSC celebrates its 75th anniversary this year, we'll look back to their origin: Martha and Rev. Waitstill Sharp helping European refugees escape persecution during World War II.

Nov 29 - "In Thanks for Grace Lee Boggs"

– Lay Leader: Jon Hart

An examination of the Detroit based activist Grace Lee Boggs and her development of the (r)evolution idea. How her concepts can help us transform and love our world.
